uel to a Many-Handed Fight in an Upown Tenement—Doubts as to Whether the Slipped From the Roof Or Was Phrown Down—The Police Report That They Can Learn Nothing About It.

old Mamie Foley, who was found last night in a terrible crushed condition in the yard of the rear tenement, 506 West Fifty-fifth street, lies at; the Roosevelt Hospital in a very precarious condition. From her statement and inquiries made at the house, the police report, "Fell or threw herself from the roof, seems very unsatisfac-

Mamie is a good-looking and well-behaved frl, who keeps house for her widowed father and her brother and sister, at No. i West Fifty-fifth street. Just after supper least-evening, she had sewing to do, and left the house to borrow a pair of scissors from Mrs.

Boney, who lives on the too floor of No. 506.
Mrs. Boney has a young lodger named Michael Pine, who has been keeping company with Mamie some little time, and the knowledge that ahe would meet her young man may have induced her to go so far for the soissors. She found Michael there drinking beer with Mr. and Mrs. Boney, and lingered a while with the scissors in her hand. Before she left, which was about 8 o'clock, she had drunk two glasses of beer.

On the way downstairs she met Mrs. Corrigan, a quarrelsome woman, who lives on the first floor with her fourteen-year-old daughter Maggie. The Corrigans had been drinking heavily and were spiteful enough to twit Mamie about her visit to young Pine.
Sharp words on both sides led to a fierce quarrel, the original combatants being joined by Mr. and Mrs. Boney and young Pine, who came downstairs with the intention of stopping the fight. Mrs. Boney had a broomstick in her hand with which she dealt Mrs.
Corrigan a cutting blow across the forehead.

Mamie Foley saw her opportunity and passed out into the yard. Mrs. Corrigan followed her and again the fight was renewed, It lasted while the two Boneys, young Pine and Mamie retreated upstairs to their own rooms. Jim Foley, Mamie's brother, came in at this time, and he blamed Pine for giving his sister liquor and getting her into a fight. Mamie and Mrs. Corrigan were pulling each other's hair at the moment and seemed determined to keep it up. Jim Foley and Pine separated them, but as soon as Mamie got away Mrs. Corrigan ran at her again, and the poor girl, in confusion, ran up the short fight of stairs which led to the roof.

It was pitch-dark and the rain fell in torrents. The roof is almost flat, with a slight inclination to the yard. There is no parapet dy ralling, or even an apology for such, to prevent one from falling off.

The Great Oursman Talks to the "Event World" About the Coming Race.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD]
PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 21.—As the time for havthe question of superiority settled between John Teemer, champion oarsman of America, and Jake Gaudaur, ex-champion, draws near the interest grows greater. Teemer was seen to-day by

THE EVENING WORLD correspondent, and in speaking of the race, said:
"My new Ruddock arrived from New York Monday, by the Franconia, and Wallace Ross brought her on. She's a beauty and, I think, some improvement on the craft I used in the race with Hanlan.

Hanlan.

"I was out in the new boat twice to-day, accompanied both times by Ross and Plaisted, in a double. Plaisted says I am getting too fast for him; so he had to get Ross to help him out.

"I am, of course, in the best of shape for a hard race, but I don't advise my friends to give odds on me, for the Rew-York people must not lose sight of the fact that Gaudaur has beaten me the last four times we have met, and I have weighed him up carefully while he was here, and both Hamm and myself are of the opinion that he is rowing, if possible, better than he did at any of the previous races we have had. However, I shall do everything that lies in my power to down him, and so settle up that old score of June, 1886, at Pullman."

at Pullman."

"How about your proposed trip abroad?"

"I don't know any more about my proposed trip to England than I read of in The Worke, but anything Mr. Keenan does for me in that line will be right. In my own opinion I think Bubear will row me. I know his backers will put up the money for him, if he will row, but he must have learned something of Yankee scullers during his visit here.
